

HALMAHERA

INDONESIA

May 19-30, 2026

Halmahera (Aboard the Damai 1): Halmahera is the largest island of the Moluccas, situated in North Maluku Province in Indonesia. Lying at the gateway to the Pacific Ocean between Lembeh Strait and Raja Ampat, Halmahera promises exceptional diving at the heart of the Coral Triangle. The waters around this sparsely populated island play host to pristine, untouched coral reefs and astounding biodiversity.

From large pelagics such as hammerhead sharks, oceanic whitetip, blacktip reef sharks, and manta rays, all the way down to teeny macro species such as nudibranchs, pygmy seahorses and harlequin shrimp.

In addition to the prolific diversity, Halmahera holds several WWII wrecks that are perfect for exploring. Halmahera is a rarely dove destination, making this a very special destination for the experienced traveler looking for that unique diving experience!
